

Grand Crêt d'Eau

Grand Crêt d'Eau is amongst these toponyms that were dictated by the cartographers and which senses have been twisted. In fact, there is only little water on this top, like for the rest of the Jura range.

However, when one knows that the true toponym should rather be « Grand Crêt d'Aup », it becomes more logical. In fact, this top is made of mountain pastures that are used during summer.

Here we will start from the small ski resort of Menthières in order to reach first the Cabane du Téléphone and the Chalet du Sac. From there, we will climb to the top of Grand Crêt d'Eau before going down again along the ski slopes.
