

Trient and the stagecoaches

The Trient, originating from its homonym glacier, flows at its beginning in a typical alpine valley. The bottom of this valley sill enables the cultivation and the pasture. As the torrent flows down, the valley becomes narrower and steep. As soon as the Eau Noire flows into it, one is in a valley of the shape of a gorge. It is along this valley that I suggest taking you.

At first, we will hike a path that is going alongside the Vernayaz fortress, which is a masterpiece of the fortified complex of St-Maurice.

Before reaching la Crêta, we will go down into the valley of Trient in order to climb the opposite side and reach les Marécottes. After having reached Salvan, we will go back to our starting point following the spectacular stagecoaches trail, survivor of the times when one reached Salvan using horses.
