

Vudalla

Insofar as one is sensitive to the protection of nature and the environment, one often gets the feeling that the development of the infrastructures is always done towards the only one trend: to have more of them. Yet there are cases where lifts were dismantled and where nature was left to reclaim. This is the case of the Mont de l'Arpille above Forclaz. This is also the case of Vudalla, where the cable car of the "barrels" has been disposed of. The reason for that was that since its construction this lift had never been profitable. The consequence is, to our delight, an ideal snowshoes terrain has got back its old aspect. The viewpoints onto Gruyères are beautiful.
